

Seminar on “Development and Building control of Land in Hong Kong Law and Practice”

Successfully Held on 6 September 2019

With the business values of land rising, the development and control of land is getting more and more complicated. While this ensures the proper uses of land resources, the legal implications to businesses call for careful handling. In view of these, there is a need to enhance the understanding of managers of key legal issues and practices regarding land law in Hong Kong which are pertaining to their work.

Through this seminar, participants are provided with a comprehensive overview of the necessary legal knowledge and practical skills in relation to the development control of land in Hong Kong, and their relevance of the knowledge in land ownership to their work for better discharging enforcement duties.

The seminar will also cover the key review of cases, situations and main legislations relevant to participants and these will be discussed with reference to local and overseas experience.

The Seminar on “Development and Building control of Land in Hong Kong Law and Practice” was successfully held on 6 September 2019. Feedbacks are very positive. The visiting lecturers were Mr. Gary Soo, Barrister-at-Law & Mr. Matthew Cheung, Barrister-at-Law.
